U.S. Armed Intervention In Cuba Out

Rusk Tells Solons Ill-Fated Invasion Was Exiles' Doing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk told senators Monday the United States has no plans whatsoever for armed intervention in Cuba.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said Rusk made it equally clear, however, that if Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro commits aggression, like an attack on the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo, the United States "will defend itself."

Rusk was interrogated for three hours at a closed-door session of the Senate foreign relations subcommittee on Latin American affairs, of which Morse is chairman.

"The secretary made it clear the United States has no plans to proceed with an American armed intervention in Cuba," Morse told newsmen.

"No Basis In Fact"

"The secretary said that rumors and statements that the United States is planning, because of the bloody nose we suffered, further military intervention in Cuba, has no basis in fact whatsoever."

Morse said Rusk made a full, factual and "open breasted statement" in which he testified the ill-starred April 17 invasion was made by Cuban exiles on their own decision, "but they did have training, arms and financial assistance" from the U.S. government.

Dulles To Testify

The inquiry will be resumed late Tuesday when Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, testifies before the full Foreign Relations Committee.

The subcommittee briefing started with the full support of Sens. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., Senate majority leader, and J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, both of whom sat in on Rusk's testimony.

Mansfield has said the subcommittee briefings do not constitute "an investigation," but rather renewed liaison between the departments involved in the invasion and the Senate subcommittee.

Laotian Ruler, Premier Split

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—King Savang Vatthana came out Monday against the great powers settling the issue of peace in Laos at a conference in Geneva.

Prince Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia said the king wants Laotians to work out their own problems.

Apparently the king took the stand against his own pro-Western government headed by Premier Boun Oum. W. Averell Harriman, roving U.S. ambassador, told reporters Boun Oum's government still favors the 14-nation conference plan after a cease-fire.

Harriman and Sihanouk, Cambodia's neutralist chief of state, stopped in this administrative capital after two days of talks in the royal capital of Luang Prabang with Laotian officials.

Harriman declared the United States is doing everything possible to promote the cease-fire between government and pro-Communist rebel forces and pledged anew the support of the United States for the government of Boun Oum.

Remote Picketing By Students

Approximately 300 college students carried signs in the rain yesterday as they picketed the Soviet Embassy a block away from the embassy building—the distance required under District of Columbia statutes. As policemen watched, the students marched for about 40 minutes before dispersing. The majority of the pickets were from Western Maryland College and a few were from the University of Maryland. ## Ike Opposes Cuban Fiasco "Witch Hunt"

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower cautioned Monday against any "witch hunt" inquiries into the Cuban invasion. And he acknowledged his administration helped the ill-fated rebel forces.

In a news conference, Eisenhower also gave President Kennedy strong support for his action in world crises.

Eisenhower said he believes the United States will stand firmly behind the President in his effort to prevent the solidifying of a Communist stronghold in the Western Hemisphere.

He said that one day history is going to tell the whole story of American participation in the disastrous effort to overthrow Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro. But he said no good purpose will be served at this moment by attempting to assess the blame for the fiasco.

"The last thing I would want would be a complete investigation and the laying out of details on the record," he said. "Let's not do anything like that."

In discussing the Cuban situation, Eisenhower said his administration had been hopeful Castro would succeed in his revolt against the Batista regime because "we were tired of dictators." He said, however, he gradually came to realize that Castro was going far to the left.

The former president said that refugees who came to the United States wanted to do something about overthrowing Castro, and his administration finally came to the decision to give them training and equipment and to gather information for them. He said nothing more was done than that.

Ruddy faced and looking fit in a brown business suit, Eisenhower met with newsmen in a small auditorium in downtown Gettysburg after he had conferred for nearly two hours with Republican leaders of Congress at an old brick building on the edge of the Gettysburg College campus where he has established an office.

Congolese Free 40 U.N. Troops

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Forty U.N. soldiers from Ghana, captured by Congolese troops at Port Francqui Saturday, were freed Monday and flown back to the Ghanaian base at Luluabourg.

The remainder of the 61-man U.N. garrison at Port Francqui still are missing but many Ghanaians are believed to have escaped into the surrounding bush and may still be in hiding. The area is in Kasai Province east of here.

Two Ghanaians are known to have been killed in Port Francqui. A third was killed when a relief column trying to reach the town from Luluabourg was ambushed. Two British officers with the Ghanaians and two officers of a Swedish movement control unit are missing and presumed dead.

The spokesman reported that negotiations between U.N. officials and Congolese army officers gained release of the 40 Ghanaians.

Nazi Atrocities Told

JERUSALEM (AP)—A tragic record of Nazi atrocities against Jews early in World War II unfolded Monday at Adolf Eichmann's trial. One courtroom spectator broke into a raging outburst against the former Gestapo officer.

A Fort Lee, N.J., mechanical engineer told of Jews used for target practice and of death by strangulation, freezing and disease at a Polish prison camp.

In the middle of a description of a Nazi deportation train, a spectator suddenly jumped to his feet and screamed: "Where is my family? Kill. Kill. Kill. Bloodhounds, bloodhounds."

Eichmann turned sharply in his seat behind sheets of bullet proof glass surrounding the prisoner's dock and watched as uniformed guards seized the witness and rushed him from the court.

Between sobs, he identified himself as Zvi Scheffer, of Tel Aviv. He said most of his family was wiped out by the Nazis.

"I only wanted to hit him (Eichmann) once," Scheffer told the guards. "Why don't they kill him? What is this trial all about?"

Other spectators in the court, many of whom went through the Nazi ordeal, frequently wiped their faces with handkerchiefs as witnesses resurrected the Nazi savagery against European Jewry. Women wept.

Polish-born Leon Weliczker Wells, now living at 2051 Edwin Ave. Fort Lee, told of living as a teen-ager in a Nazi concentration camp where guards competed in a grim shooting match.

"Two SS officers started a competition to see how many nose tips or fingers they could hit by firing at Jews from a distance. In the evening, when the shooting was finished, they would hunt down those they had injured and give them the last shot."

Havana Celebrates With Vast Parade

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Hundreds of thousands of Cubans paraded through Havana Monday in a gigantic May Day buildup for Fidel Castro's expected major pronouncement on the future of his "socialist" regime.

Cuban television commentators said 3 million of Cuba's 6½ million people were packed into Havana's Civic Plaza.

Militiamen and civilians of all ages streamed all day before Castro, who stood smoking cigars and scanning the crowd through field glasses from a reviewing stand.

The square was a sea of men, women and children carrying flags, banners and placards. Dozens of floats and banners praised Castro's revolution or denounced "Yankee imperialism."

Prominently displayed in the parade was a large wing of a U.S. eagle, broken from a statue and dangled from a construction crane.

The statue, which a commentator said was torn down Sunday night, was a memorial to the U.S. Battleship Maine, sunk in Havana Harbor at the start of the Spanish-American War.

Castro was flanked by President Osvaldo Dorticos, military leaders, members of the Council of Ministers and foreign diplomats including the Soviet ambassador.

The parade went on for hours. Late in the afternoon several heavy tanks filed past the reviewing stands, in the first display of heavy military weapons. The TV announcer did not say what kind of tanks they were.

Earlier in the day, many soldiers with rifles and one mobile anti-aircraft gun were observed on the telecast, picked up in this Florida City, 90 miles from Havana.

Workers and peasants were brought into Havana for what TV announcers proclaimed the first May Day celebration anywhere in the Americas "with the working class in power."

Soviets Hail Fidel, Yuri

By The Associated Press

Leftists and Communists from Moscow to Havana turned the working man's traditional May Day holiday into demonstrations of power and anti-American political rallies.

The Soviet Union set the keynote by placing Maj. Yuri A. Gagarin on the reviewing stand in Moscow's Red Square next to Premier Khrushchev.

Huge pictures of the Soviet astronaut, with slogans hailing him as a symbol of Communist political and industrial advances over capitalism, were carried by May Day marchers throughout the Communist world.

Some demonstrators also carried signs hailing Cuba's Fidel Castro and the murdered Congolese leader Patrice Lumumba as symbols of the emerging nationalism fostered by Moscow.

Marshal Rodion Malinovsky, Soviet defense minister, appealed for peace in Moscow's keynote speech. But he boasted of Soviet armed might and warned the United States to keep hands off Cuba.

Ike Cancels Planned Trip To Japan In Fall

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UPI)—Former President Eisenhower announced Monday he has cancelled his planned trip to Japan this fall on advice of the State Department.

The department recommended against the trip because of current world tensions, Eisenhower told a news conference.

In Washington, officials said this meant fear of Communist demonstrations like those which forced cancellation of his presidential visit to Tokyo last June.

Another first effort, by playwright Tad Mosel, won him the drama award for "All the Way Home," a play that came close to closing the same week it opened on Broadway. It was the first stage play by Mosel, hitherto a television writer, and was based on the late James Agee's Pulitzer Prize novel of 1958, "A Death in the Family."

The Pulitzer gold medal for public service, went to the Amarillo, Tex., Globe-Times, first Texas paper ever to win the

U.S. Airliner Hijacked For Cuban Flight

Plane Returns To Florida Minus Aerial Gunman

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—An armed passenger hijacked a Miami to Key West airliner Monday, and forced its pilot to land on a Cuban military base.

Passengers and crewmen aboard the two-engine National Airlines plane said that a few minutes after leaving Marathon Airport in the Florida Keys they were told by the stewardess that "a passenger has a knife against the captain." They were asked to remain quiet.

Copilot J.T. Richardson of Jacksonville said that the knife-wielding passenger also carried a gun and ordered him to leave the cockpit.

"I don't know what went on there. He sat there with captain (Francis X.) Riley while I was in the passenger compartment," Richardson said.

Asked whether the passenger had damaged the plane's radio equipment, Richardson said he had not, but "he turned it off."

Plane Returns Minus Gunman

Richardson told his story to a newsmen in a shack at the edge of Key West Airport after the plane had returned to the United States, minus its hijacker. The latter remained at the San Antonio de Banas Base near Havana.

Passengers were confused by the aerial holdup.

One of them, Mrs. Arthur Goldberg of New York, said that after the aerial gunman took charge, "we circled Key West without landing and then we knew we might be heading for Cuba."

"When we landed, we saw a lot of armed men come running to the plane."

Her husband, an ensign with the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, added that the men surrounding the plane at Havana seemed to be enlisted men rather than officers. He said they did not board the aircraft or molest the passengers.

Copilot Richardson said the Cubans did not appear to know who the armed passenger was. The plane remained at San Antonio de Banos for about three hours while the Cubans discussed what to do with him.

Refreshments Declined

"They seemed eager to get rid of us," Ensign Goldberg said. His wife said the Cuban soldiers offered refreshments to the plane's passengers but the offer was not accepted.

Death Accidental

LONDON (AP)—A coroner recorded a verdict Monday that British thriller novelist Christopher Landon's death was accidental.

Landon, 50, was found dead in his studio last Wednesday. The novelist's doctor said Landon, who suffered from a leg blood clot, apparently had taken 35 sleeping pills in five days.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Space experts and astronauts tried to outguess the weather Monday night—but there's a 50-50 chance clouds and winds will postpone Tuesday's expected firing of an American into space.

A midnight look at the weather by a caucus of experts will decide whether the countdown, now nearly half gone, will continue.

Tuesday's half of the countdown is the critical part, when the rocket is fueled and the astronaut prepared and installed in the space capsule. Monday, mostly, the rocket's electronic systems were checked and the countdown had gone without incident at this point.

Rain visited the cape this afternoon, after cloudy skies this morning broke a streak of beautiful weather.

But at noon a Polaris rocket streaked through the broken clouds and was still visible about 35 miles high.

Identity Still Secret

Informed sources held hope that the weather would clear enough Tuesday. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has set weather standards well above what is required for an ordinary missile launching.

Meanwhile, two Mercury astronauts flew mock missions Monday in a capsule like that which may take one of them into space.

No official announcement of the date or time has been made, but the space trip could come any time after 7 a.m. Eastern Standard Time, Tuesday, weather and other factors permitting.

In the few hours ahead, one of the two will be named to man the controls when a Redstone rocket lifts the bell-shaped capsule 115 miles high and 290 miles downrange.

The other will be his "back-up," or alternate.

But late Monday neither knew which would be which.

Each Must Be Ready

Each knew only that he must be ready — mentally as well as physically — in case something should happen to his buddy.

First one, then the other, climbed into the earthbound capsule to practice for the 15-minute flight southeastward across the Atlantic.

Each knows the complex controls of the 6-by-9-foot spacecraft better than most drivers know the dashboard of their cars. But in the final tune-up of man and machine every procedure must be gone over and over.

The identities of the two men were closely guarded. The world knew only that they were among the three picked from the team of seven Mercury astronauts: Marine Lt. Col. John Glenn, 39, Air Force Capt. Virgil Grissom, 35, and Navy Comdr. Alan Shepard, 37.

JFK Told Jobless Picture 'Intolerable'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's labor-management advisory committee reported to him Monday that "the present unemployment situation is intolerable."

The 21-man group talked with Kennedy at the White House.

It adopted unanimously a statement describing the current level of nearly 5½ million idle workers as "intolerable" but at the same time stressed that technological change and automation must be recognized as an essential thing that must continue.

Bus Plunge Kills Four

PAMPLONA, Colombia (AP)—A crowded bus ran off a cliff Monday, killing four passengers and injuring 26 others.

Astronauts Fly Mock Missions

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Space experts and astronauts tried to outguess the weather Monday night—but there's a 50-50 chance clouds and winds will postpone Tuesday's expected firing of an American into space.

Stevenson, Bowles Attend

Among outside experts called in Monday were U.N. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, Dillon, Under Secretary of State Chester Bowles and the armed services secretaries.

Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary had said in advance that Kennedy and the expanded NSC would discuss nuclear test talks at Geneva as well as Laos.

But Salinger said after the conference ended that the nuclear test ban item did not come up. He said that Arthur H. Dean, head of the U.S. negotiators at test ban talks in Geneva, and John J. McCloy, Kennedy's top disarmament advisor, did not attend as originally scheduled.

That left the concentration on Laos, where efforts to work out a cease-fire between Communist-backed rebels and the pro-Western government so far have produced little but talk and maneuvering.

It was the fourth NSC meeting in ten days. And before that there had only been three meetings since Kennedy took office Jan. 20.

Risks Weighed

The United States has been weighing carefully risks of intervening directly in Laos along with its allies and the risks of not intervening. The administration also has been considering taking the Laotian issue to the United Nations Security Council if cease-fire efforts miscfire.

Salinger said the NSC meeting Tuesday will focus mainly on the question of barring nuclear tests.

Kennedy and his advisers are expected to decide in the next few days whether there is any use trying to get Russia to go along with a ban.

U.S. intelligence reported that the Soviet arms airlift to pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels slackened off sharply Sunday from its previous 20-planes-daily average.

But otherwise, the picture drawn here was increasingly pessimistic about the chances for a peaceful settlement of the Laos crisis to forestall a Communist takeover.

First Efforts Win Fiction, Drama Awards

NEW YORK (AP)—Harper Lee, 35, a native of Alabama, won the 1961 Pulitzer Prize for fiction Monday with the first of her works ever published — the novel "To Kill a Mockingbird."

It depicts the struggles of a small Southern town to solve its social problems.

Another first effort, by playwright Tad Mosel, won him the drama award for "All the Way Home," a play that came close to closing the same week it opened on Broadway. It was the first stage play by Mosel, hitherto a television writer, and was based on the late James Agee's Pulitzer Prize novel of 1958, "A Death in the Family."

The Pulitzer gold medal for public service, went to the Amarillo, Tex., Globe-Times, first Texas paper ever to win the award. It was cited for a successful campaign to smash corruption in local government. The effort, touched off by Editor Thomas Hazzard Thompson, resulted in a law enforcement shakeup and the election of a reform slate of officials.

For the first time in the 45-year history of the Pulitzer awards, the one for photography went to a foreigner, Yasushi Naga, of the Tokyo newspaper Mainichi. Only two foreigners ever won Pulitzer prizes before — the first, in history, in 1917, and the other in correspondence in 1934.

Nagao was cited for his dramatic picture of the assassination last Oct. 12 of Japanese Socialist Chairman Inejiro Asanuma. It was distributed in this country by United Press International, thus making Nagao eligible for his prize.

Except for the gold medal award, all journalistic citations earn prizes of $1,000; those in arts and letters are worth $500 each to the recipients. The gold medal award carries no cash.

The Pulitzer prizes were set up by the late newspaper publisher Joseph Pulitzer in a bequest to Columbia University. They are awarded annually by the trustees of the university on recommendation of an advisory board composed mainly of newspaper executives.

The 1961 international reporting award was bestowed on Lynn Heinzerling of The Associated Press, 54, who has been in foreign service since 1938. He was honored for pioneer reporting during the early days of the Congo crisis.

The editorial writing award went to William J. Dorvillier, editor and publisher of the San Juan, Puerto Rico, Star, founded a little more than a year ago and owned by Cowles Magazines.

Edward R. Cony, 38, a news editor of the Wall Street Journal, won the national reporting prize.

Sanche de Gramont, 29, a reporter on the New York Herald Tribune, won the Pulitzer Prize for local reporting under the pressure of edition time.

The prize for local reporting where deadline pressure was not a factor went to Edgar May of the Buffalo Evening News, also a native of Switzerland.

Carey Orr, 71, a cartoonist for the Chicago Tribune since 1917, won the Pulitzer cartoon award for long and distinguished service in his field.

Depressed Areas Aid Bill Signed By Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Using 18 pennies, President Kennedy signed into law the $394-million depressed areas bill—his first major job-creating program to pass Congress.

His action Monday immediately applied to at least 110 American communities, now stricken with unemployment and faltering industry.

The law makes them eligible to ask the federal government for loans and grants to attract industry and retrain jobless workers.

"There's no piece of legislation which has been passed that gives me greater satisfaction to sign," Kennedy said at a White House ceremony attended by more than a score of congressmen and Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges.

While signing the bill, Kennedy announced the name of the man who will administer the program. He is William L. Batt Jr., Pennsylvania secretary of labor and industry.

End To Tradition

TOKYO (AP)—Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda will break tradition by taking his wife along on his U.S. trip in June.

Vermont was the first state to be admitted to the Union after the original 13 colonies.

Allegheny Corp. Control Awaits Count Of Ballots

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Two powerful big-money groups, struggling for control of the Allegheny Corporation in the nation's biggest proxy battle, met on the common ground of a stockholders' meeting Monday and came out with a no-decision count in this first round.

Allegheny chief Allan P. Kirby and his arch foes, the Murchison brothers of Texas, cooperated in bringing an occasionally stormy meeting to a swift conclusion and putting off until May 8 a decision in the proxy election for control of a $6.5 billion railroad and investment empire.

President Charles T. Ireland Jr., presiding at the 1½ hour meeting, rigorously enforced ground rules laid down by the rival camps, designed to cut short oratory and discourage demonstrations from the floor by some 500 shareholders in attendance.

Clint Murchison said he believed it would be "a week to 10 days" before the count would be completed in the tight election race for the richest proxy prize in the annals of American finance.

On one occasion Ireland had two shareholders bearing anti-management placards forcibly ejected from the meeting hall in the Lord Baltimore Hotel.

He also silenced one shareholder who rose to extol the Kirby management.

Kirby, attending his first Allegheny meeting in 19 years, opened the proceedings but quickly withdrew into the background. He remained impassive during several attacks against him from the floor.

John D. Murchison said after the meeting that he "is quite encouraged by the response of independent shareholders," but again declined to predict victory.

The polls will remain open until 9 a.m. EDT Tuesday. A total of 9,844,970 Allegheny common shares is entitled to be voted.

Bar Recommends 12 For Judgeships

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Maryland State Bar Association has recommended 12 Maryland lawyers for appointment to two federal judgeships to be created in the state, it was announced Monday.

Nominated were Franklin G. Allen, Baltimore; Rignall W. Baldwin, Baltimore; David W. Byron, Hagerstown; H. Vernon Eney, Baltimore; Frank A. Kaufman, Baltimore; John Henry Lewin, Baltimore; William M. Loker, Jr., Leonardtown, St. Marys County; Judge James MacGill, Howard County; Charles Markell Jr., Baltimore; William J. McWilliams, Annapolis; John L. Sanford Jr., Berlin, Worcester County, and Harrison L. Winter, Baltimore.

The two vacancies in U.S. District Court will be created by a pending act of Congress now in committee.

Soviet Embassy Snubs Student Picket Emissary

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Russian Embassy refused to open its doors this May Day to an American college student with a message about freedom and peaceful demonstration.

Undaunted, 300 students marched in the rain seven or eight times around the next block up the street from the embassy. About 250 of them were from Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md., where students organized the demonstration.

After 40 minutes of marching in orderly fashion, while policemen watched, the boys and girls stood on the corner facing the embassy across the intersection and sang "The Star Spangled Banner." They sang it once more before dispersing.

There were no incidents. They carried signs with words such as "Stop Stoning Our Embassies," "Youth Speaks for Democracy," and "Western Maryland College Stands Against Communism."

At the end of the line was a group from the University of Maryland, who said they came as individuals. One carried a sign simply saying "Me, Too." Others questioned said they came from the Johns Hopkins University and the Maryland Institute of Art in Baltimore, from Hood College and Towson State Teachers College in Maryland and from American University here.

William E. Moore, a senior at Western Maryland, went up to the embassy door with the letter which was written in Russian. He rang the doorbell twice before a face appeared at a small glass window in the door.

"I have a letter here," Bill began, but the face disappeared. He started to slip the letter under the door, but a nearby policeman cautioned against that, and Bill left with the letter.

"We expected they would not answer the door but though it would be worth trying," Bill told news-men. "We'll mail it."

The letter was written to the Soviet Chairman Nikita Khrushchev.

"Today you are celebrating May Day with a parade of military might through the streets of Moscow," the letter began. "In contrast to a show of force so necessary for the preservation of a totalitarian state such as your own, we American students are demonstrating peacefully in front of your embassy."

The letter said the students do not believe in the historical inevitability of Communism.

"As a freedom loving people," it said, "we detest Communist infiltration and subversion in Africa, in the free areas of Asia and in this hemisphere. Because of this, we give our wholehearted support to the stand of the President of the United States on the questions of Cuba and Laos."

Moore said the idea for the demonstration came when a group of students saw a film about vandalism against the U. S. Embassy in Moscow. "We were disgusted with the way Russian students acted and thought we could show the world the way American students can act," Moore said.

Kenny Kenton from Oxon Hill, Md., a freshman at Western Maryland, led the demonstration dressed as Uncle Sam. All the boys wore jackets and ties. They abided strictly with the District of Columbia regulations and stayed at least 500 feet from the embassy.

His stepfather and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kerb, said the youth left a note on his dresser mentioning an accidental shooting of two persons and disclosing plans to head for New Mexico or Arizona.

Investigators found Monday a .22 caliber semiautomatic rifle and several empty cartridges hidden in the Kerb attic. Officers were checking out reports the youth had been seen at a bus station in nearby Saugatuck late Sunday.

The second note left by Stephens was found attached to a bicycle on which the youth left his home Sunday. The note offered the finder of the bicycle a reward for returning it to the Kerb home.

Dr. Peter Brachman said a preliminary medical examination showed Margaret had two gunshot wounds in her chest and two others in her back. Carol was shot twice behind the right ear and once in the right thigh.

ONEIDA, N. Y. (AP)—Kenneth E. Dudley, held in Virginia in the death of a daughter, has signed a statement that he strangled a woman 12 years ago and buried her in a garbage dump near Syracuse, State Police said Monday.

Lt. Harry E. Blaisdell told reporters Dudley, 47, had pointed out on a topographical map the general area where he buried the darkhaired woman, known only as Jean.

Dudley was questioned by New York State Police several days ago in the city jail at Richmond, Va., where he and his wife are held on murder charges in the malnutrition death of 8-year-old Carol Ann Dudley.

Police say the Dudleys also have admitted they disposed of the bodies of four other children who died during the family's cross-country trip as carnival workers.

Dudley's wife, Irene, 44, told police last week her husband had killed the woman, a stranger to both of them, in a fit of anger after the woman picked his pocket.

Frederick Man Seeks Release From Patuxent

BALTIMORE (AP)—Lloyd R. Roberts of Frederick sought release Monday from Patuxent Institution of the grounds he was not given the opportunity to fight charges that he is a defective delinquent while being held for two years.

In a petition to Baltimore Criminal Court, attorney Alan H. Murrell complained his 27-year-old client was told in December, 1958, that he was considered a defective delinquent but he was not arraigned on the charge until last December 28.

Roberts, convicted on assault charges and given a three-year sentence in July, 1958, was transferred to Patuxent on the court's order to determine whether he is a defective delinquent, the petition said. On Oct. 28, the petition said, the institution director forwarded its report to the Frederick County Circuit Court alleging Roberts was a defective delinquent.

Murrell said Roberts was notified of the findings in December, 1958, but never saw the report until a copy was mailed to him more than two years later by the State's attorney for Frederick County.

Vicious Killer Placed On Most Wanted List

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Kenneth Hollock Sharp, the wanted murderer of a 75-year-old gas station attendant in a 1952 holdup, Monday was placed on the FBI's list of 10 most wanted criminals.

The FBI described him as "highly dangerous and vicious." Some of his friends have expressed fear he may be mentally deranged. Sharp has eluded capture since the Chicago slaying of more than eight years ago.

Now 29 years old, Sharp began his crime career at age 17 when he and two companions abducted and robbed an insurance salesman.

Goose Gets Lift On Flight From D. C. To Canada

ERINDALE, Ont. (AP)—Laska, a wandering Canada goose, returned to a bird sanctuary Monday after spending the winter in a pond in front of the Capitol in Washington, D.C., but it had to hitchhike the last lap.

Laska flew off last September. Washington wondered where the goose came from until Roy Ivor of the Rindale Sanctuary identified Laska by an old wound—a muskrat once bit off part of the left foot.

The goose headed back home this weekend but its navigation was faulty. The bird sanctuary people spotted it at nearby Port Credit, gave it a ride the rest of the way home on a truck.

Public Misled In Rocket Fuel Furore, Expert Says

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—A leading rocket authority said Monday, the public is being misled in the furore over liquid vs. solid fuel for missiles.

Dr. Albert C. Hall, vice president for engineering for the Martin Co., said the real issue on missile propellants is not whether they are liquid or solid, but whether they are storable.

Addressing the 14th annual convention of the National Federation of Financial Analysts Societies, Hall discussed the application of new storable liquid fuels to the Titan II, a Martin ICBM.

Hall said the Titan II uses these new liquids which, unlike earlier liquid propellants, can be stored in the missile ready for instantaneous firing. Moreover, he explained, these new liquid fuels are hypergolic — that is, they ignite upon contact with each other.

Hall said neither he nor Martin is interested in pleading a special case for liquid fuels since the firm also produces the solid fuel Pershing.

Preoccupation with missile propellants does not particularly serve the public interest, he said, because "the overriding criterion of rocket capability is not what makes it go, but why and where we want it to go. In short, we ought to ask questions about missions not detailed means; about purposes, not specific propellants." He added:

"Today we are using liquid and solid fuel rockets. Tomorrow they will be supplemented and in many respects supplanted by nuclear rockets."

Byrd has served as department director, as well as TFC chairman, since the reorganized commission took office June 1, 1959. The reorganization act specifically separated the two posts.

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Tidewater Fisheries Commission agreed Monday it "will put forth every possible effort" to name a fulltime director of the fisheries department within 60 days.

The decision was announced at a formal meeting after the five-member commission had thrashed out the matter at a closed-door session in advance. Chairman H. C. Byrd called members together two hours before the scheduled meeting time announced to the press.

Byrd has served as department director, as well as TFC chairman, since the reorganized commission took office June 1, 1959. The reorganization act specifically separated the two posts.

City Approves Ordinance On Temporary Licenses

The Mayor and Council yesterday approved an ordinance requiring a license for "temporary" businesses within the city.

For concerns not the owner of a building, having a lease of less than one year or on a month-to-month tenancy basis, the license will cost $500 for the first month and $100 for each month thereafter, not exceeding a period of six months.

Violation of the ordinance carries a fine of $10 or not more than $50 and each day over the limits of the law will be construed as a separate violation, the ordinance states.

A number of routine matters also came before council yesterday. Among them were these: The bid of Cumberland Contracting Company for resurfacing five streets, Columbia, Union, Harrison, Central and Allegheny, was accepted. The amount is for $19,894 and the order carried a note that the streets would be completed by June 15.

The bid of McIntyre Chevrolet, Inc., for two one-ton trucks for the Water Department was accepted. The amount is $2,790.58. Also accepted was the bid of Payne-Deaf and Company of Clinton, Conn., for a truck-mounted valve operator in the amount of $1,840. This equipment is also for the Water Department.

Council received several bids on filtration equipment needed at Constitution Park swimming pool under orders of the Health Department. Bids, referred to Street Commissioner John J. Long, were received from American Water Softener Company, Philadelphia; Swimming Pool Equipment and Supply Company, Washington, D. C.; Fischer and Porter Company, Hathboro, Pa.; Harris Pump and Supply Company, Pittsburgh; B-I-F Industries, Providence, R. I.; and the Culligan Division of Crystal Laundry Company, this city.

Long was also authorized to advertise for bids for the widening, paving, grading, draining and curbing of Franklin Street.

The case developed Friday night when the son shot his father in the right foot with a shotgun on a street near their home. The father was treated at Memorial Hospital and released.

Man Protests Building Job

The city said yesterday it would check a report that a building being constructed by Allegheny County on Franklin Street is beyond the future curb line of Franklin Street and no permit has been granted for the project.

C. Erich Roeder, 808 Trost Avenue, appeared before the Mayor and Council yesterday and pointed out the building is in a Residential "A" area.

City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum said the county had not obtained a permit for the building and that he understood it is half-completed.

Commissioner G. Ray Light questioned how work could have been started in an "A" area without a permit. Nuzum explained that under the ordinance if a business was in existence prior to 1944 it could continue without a permit. However, if it were to be enlarged, a permit application would be necessary. This would be turned down immediately and referred to the Board of Zoning Appeals for action.

Light said the city should look into it and stop the building project until the situation is cleared up. Then he added it might have to be torn down.

A check with county officials revealed that the building in question is being constructed to house voting machines.

Mr. Nuzum later discussed the situation with Harry T. Skelly, county roads engineer, explaining a city permit is needed even though the building is on county property.

Mr. Skelly told Mr. Nuzum he would take up the problem with the Board of Allegheny County Commissioners.

Work Delayed On New Traffic Signal

The new traffic signal system at Fifth and Laing Avenues will not be in operation in time for the National Sports Car Races the weekend of May 13, the Mayor and Council was informed yesterday.

City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum said the delay has been occasioned at the manufacturer's level and that a control panel necessary for operating the lights will not be received until the last of the month.

The question of when the lights will be placed in operation was raised when an order to pay a third estimate on installation to Queen City was introduced. Council passed the order for $2,000. Contract price is $12,900 and the third payment bring to $8,300 the amount paid by the city to date.

The control panel, Nuzum said, tied in with the tripper pads and radar control for the lights.

Seek Lighting Bids

The Mayor and Council yesterday authorized Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming to request bids for lighting the court room, communications room and squad room of the Public Safety Building.

Local Plant Involved In Merger Talks

Textron Electronics, Inc., whose plants include Allegheny Instrument Company in Cumberland, and the Lionel Corporation, announced plans for a merger yesterday.

Gen. John B. Medaris, president of Lionel, and Royal Little, president of Textron Electronics, said they had agreed to recommend merger to their respective directors, if approved by both boards, stockholders' meetings will be held to take final action.

They said tentative merger terms are on the basis of one share of Lionel for three and one-third shares of Textron. The surviving corporation would operate under the Lionel name with Medaris as president; Roy M. Cohn, chairman of the board, and Little, chairman of the executive committee.

Principal products of Allegheny Instrument are precision electronic measuring devices and thrust and load stands.

Council Rules On Parking Lot

An applicant for an open air parking lot at the corner of Baltimore and Mechanic Streets was told yesterday that he could not have direct entrance or exit from the site because of a traffic problem which would result.

Instead, he would have to use an alley which runs in back of the property and blacktop the area before a permit would be issued.

Application for the permit to the Mayor and Council was made by Louis Waingold who said the lot would accommodate 21 to 50 cars. Until the building was torn down some time ago, the site was the location of a nightclub and hotel.

Council acted on motion of Commissioner G. Ray Light, seconded by Commissioner Lucile Roeder.

Soviets Have Plenty Of Oil

After a 6,000-mile tour of oil fields and the petroleum processing industry in the Soviet Union, three American petroleum experts report they found the Soviet oil potential to be substantial.

The Russians produced 2.9 million barrels daily in 1958 and their seven-year goal is 4.8 million barrels daily by 1965. The Americans concluded the Soviets might exceed that goal. American production of crude oil exceeds 7 million barrels daily.

While the Russians lag behind the U. S. in oil technology, their needs are different. In the United States, main productive emphasis is on gasoline to fuel the nation's motor cars. The Russians are going after diesel oil and industrial fuel oil for their machinery.

Russia has huge reserves of oil which have not been tapped. Current drilling is in surface formations easily reached. In the U. S., flush production was tapped long ago and it is now necessary to hunt harder and drill deeper for new production.

The news that Russia has plenty of oil at home may be good or bad. There is no economic pressure for invasion of oil-rich countries. But the Soviets will try to export cheap oil, trying to attain their political goals through trade, as they have always done. Just the other day, they announced that they'll ship oil to Cuba, use special detergents to clean out the ships' compartments, then refill them with Cuban sugar to take home.

But, while the United States and most of the advanced Western nations have drawn heavily on their natural resources, Russia is merely in the beginning of that process.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Big Question

Lester I. Bowman, chairman of the School Board of Petersburg, Virginia, asked a very interesting question: "While Russia has caused us embarrassment by putting into orbit the first Sputnik and hurling man safely into space, these outstanding accomplishments should not overwhelm or discourage us. But in our fright over these events, should we tear our Constitution asunder and totally change our American way of life? Must the individual become a small pawn in the big hand of the state?"

The issue raised here is whether our representative republic can survive the pressure of science, technology and international politics. The answer to this question will be determined by history.

Already a vast change has occurred in the structure of American life by the rapid shift from the compromises of a representative republic to a democracy by pressure groups.

Most Americans are not conscious of this alteration in the structure of American government or how rapid it has been. In fact, the word, democracy, is used to describe the American form of government despite the impediments of the Constitution which were designed to prevent us from becoming a democracy. More and more institutions come into existence which establish democratic forms, mostly consisting of pressure groups which means that decisions are made not by deliberative action but as responses to immediate popular demands.

Those who hope to keep the United States a representative republic often advocate specific measures which eliminate the checks and balances designed to prevent us from becoming a democracy. A younger generation grows up which has never known that we are not a democracy or who can define a democracy. They respond to the word as though it were a mark of political superiority. They are not taught at school what they should know, namely, that no government on the face of the Earth is a democracy and that no such government could flourish under present conditions.

Our problem then is whether we can, under the pressure of events, continue to be a representative republic, with the freedoms guaranteed by the Constitution. The greatest luxury of American life has been the extensive liberties of the individual; his right to form the pattern of his own life; to hold to his own views and to pursue them into action, taking personal responsibility for his conduct. It has been this which explains the individual independence from governmental authority, the subjection of government to the choice of the people, and the vast and rapid development of the private facilities for production and distribution.

Can all this survive another war or even the preparation for war? Can American industry survive the restrictions put upon it during war? Can American industry survive the requirements of over-building of industrial establishments for war preparation and then the reduction of the use of such plant and equipment during a period between wars?

Is it possible for the United States to act with efficient speed in an emergency? President de Gaulle was able to handle a very difficult situation in four days; the United States has not even been able to formulate a workable Cuba policy in two years. Are we too over-organized for swift action? Are there too many committees, boards, departments to be consulted? Does Congress hold up the President or does information come up to the top too slowly, so that a President of the United States is inadequately informed until the action taken no longer serves?

Certainly, neither President Eisenhower nor President Kennedy was properly and swiftly informed regarding Castro. How long does it take for an Ambassador's report to move from his Embassy through channels until it reaches the President? And what happens if there is a conflict of view between an Ambassador and a CIA operative?

President Kennedy gallantly assumes full responsibility for the Cuban fiasco. But such gallantry is neither correct nor necessary. Whereas the President is responsible for the entire Executive Branch of government, obviously no man can manage all the departments, boards, bureaus, and administrations of a sprawling, improperly organized government which needs bringing together into tighter operating effectiveness. If this country ever finds that it cannot move, that it is being defeated by incompetence and slowness, it will undoubtedly be due to the fact that having developed an unmanageable bureaucracy during World War II, nothing has been done to reorganize it and to make it suitable for swift decisions and action.

Self-Confidence, Love Of Power, JFK Assets

By Stewart Alsop

Editors Note: Joseph Alsop is on a brief vacation. During his absence his brother Stewart will write the Alsop column.

WASHINGTON.

During the last two unhappy weeks, a small theme out of the fairly recent past has recurred rather often to this reporter's mind.

The time was just two years ago, a little after two o'clock of a lovely springtime afternoon. The place was the office of Sen. John F. Kennedy in the old Senate Office Building. The reporter, who had come to interview the Senator for an article for the "Saturday Evening Post," was digesting an excellent steak, courtesy of the Senator, who was sitting in a rocking chair with his feet up on a desk. The Senator had talked with his usual rather hair-raising candor about his plans and prospects in his campaign for the presidency, which was just getting off the ground. Then the reporter asked a question:

"You know, you just might get to be President of these United States. And you know that by 1961 all sorts of terrible chickens will be coming home to roost. Don't you sometimes wake up in a cold sweat at night when you think you might actually get to be President?"

The question seemed to come as something of a surprise to the Senator, who paused for a moment to think it over. His reply cannot be reproduced verbatim, but the reporter's recollection of it is vivid, and it went as follows:

"Well, I know there are a lot of chickens coming home to roost. And I know that it is somehow presumptuous of any man to think of himself in company with men like Jefferson and Lincoln. But I look at the other men who might be President, and I really think I'm as able to handle the job as any of them — except maybe Lyndon, and I don't think he has a chance for the nomination."

There was another pause, and then Kennedy continued, as though aware that the first part of his answer was inadequate:

"Besides, I've spent a good many years up here." (He pronounced "years" as "yee-ahs" and "here" as "hee-yah.") "I realize now that this isn't where the power is, on The Hill. The real power to make the basic decisions is down there (they-yah) on Pennsylvania Avenue."

Now that the young Senator is on Pennsylvania Avenue, the chickens are indeed coming home to roost, and in almost uncountable numbers. What the young Senator said two years ago is worth recalling now, because it suggests certain of the qualities which the young President is bringing to the task of dealing with the culture-like chickens which are settling so thickly about him.

The first is a calm confidence in himself. If it were not so calm, if it were more strident and pushful, it would be plain arrogance. But although the movements of his hands sometimes betray a physical nervousness, the strain really does not seem to reach much deeper than that. "I've watched him take some blood-curdling decisions," a White House aide recently told this reporter, "about Cuba and Laos and the rest. Well, there are a lot of people who seem calm under stress, but you realize that they are controlling themselves with a great effort. But this man — I really think he is calm, all the way through."

Another Kennedy quality is an unabashed love of power. Where "the real power to make the basic decisions" is, that is where Kennedy wants to be. That is still where he wants to be, even after the agonizing decisions of Cuba and Laos. In his first hundred days in office, the new President has been called upon to make decisions as difficult as those which have confronted any President in the last century. Perhaps more than a century, for although the decisions Abraham Lincoln was called upon to make involved the bloodiest war in history until that time, they involved no risk of the physical destruction of the United States.

While the decision-making process is going on, Kennedy is careful even cautious. "He'll inspect a problem from all angles, sort of turning it over and over in his hand," another aide says. "He'll say, 'Suppose such-and-such happens, what do we do then?' Then he'll go further, and say, 'Suppose that doesn't work, then what do we do?' But when the time comes when he has to decide, you don't have the feeling it's an agony for him. You'll even have the feeling that he enjoys it in a way."

This way of making decisions does not always insure the right decision. In the Cuban affair, in this reporter's opinion, it led the President to fall between two stools. In Laos, it may have led him to delay too long. But at least it is good that the President does not shrink from making decisions. Self-confidence and a love of power are vast assets in the presidency, for which good intentions and a warm heart are no substitute.

It is much too early to predict whether Kennedy also has the X-quality, which seems to be partly the power to excite and stimulate and galvanize, and partly something very like plain luck, which divides the great Presidents from the merely adequate. In the sea of troubles which now threatens to engulf him, Kennedy will prove himself a more than adequate President if the country he leads and the system it stands for simply survive. If he can do more, much more, if he can take arms against his sea of troubles and by opposing end them, he will certainly rank as a great President.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

McNAMARA — Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara has cautioned the high military and civilian brass in his department against succumbing to temptations to abuse their positions for personal gain or comfort.

In a formal directive, McNamara re-stated long-standing "standards of conduct" that apply to all employees of the administrative branch of government, not only the Pentagon.

It is not known whether the McNamara directive was inspired by knowledge of any specific current abuses. Defense Department spokesmen would say only that the directive was a "codification" of existing Army, Navy and Air Force regulations, rather than any tightening of procedures.

Nevertheless, there was some eyebrow-raising in other departments when the McNamara directive became known. It was considered unusual that he should take upon himself to issue written instructions at this time, when there are no signs of a government-wide drive to tighten up on ethical behavior among its employees and officials.

McNamara's order declared: "Defense personnel shall not accept any gift, favor or hospitality for themselves or their families from any enterprise or person doing business with the Department of Defense which might reasonably be interpreted by others as being of such nature that it could affect their impartiality."

McNamara also barred them from using "government facilities, property, manpower or funds for other than official business." This latter caution refers primarily to widespread use of official autos in personal driving.

Other sections deal with special uses of airplanes, or government office equipment for other than business of an official nature. No one at the Pentagon appears disturbed by the edict, as the vast majority of Defense personnel have long been observing the rules. However, a few are wondering why the directive was issued so shortly after McNamara took office.

Zipper Can Aggravate Bursitis Of Shoulder

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dollen

Many individuals have strained their arms lifting overhead garage doors and starting outboard motors. These maneuvers aggravate bursitis and bring on muscle fatigue. The strain of lifting the garage door is minimized by standing with the feet separated and using both hands. The self-starter usually solves the problem with outboard motors.

After I wrote on this subject the wife of a Northwestern university professor made the following comments: "I'm married to a professor so I wouldn't know the luxury of an outboard motor or a double garage. But here's my problem — and every other woman's — the back zipper. This movement not only brings on bur-sitis, muscle fatigue, and very bad temper but is embarrassing when I go out partially unzipped. Have you any influence with the garment industry?"

I sympathize with this faculty wife and with all husbands who must come to the aid of their spouse when dressing for dinner. A woman living alone must be a contortionist to get dressed without developing bursitis. Some man could get rich inventing a rope, chain, or device similar to a backscratcher to pull up the zipper without undue strain.

There is no need to criticize the industry, because women have been torturing themselves for years in the name of style. The zipper is better than buttons and is nothing compared with lacing an old fashioned corset. We still see pictures of husbands sticking a knee into the small of the wife's back to help her squeeze into an hourglass figure.

Many gals wear shoes that are too small and pulling up a tight girdle is almost as hard on the arms (and temper) as zipping up the back. We realize these hardships are insignificant compared with those of women in other countries where custom decrees a ring in the nose and a plate hanging from a lip.

TOMORROW: Don't fuss if you can't sleep.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Samuel Hopkins Adams, always willing to try anything once, consented to attend a nudist party one Fourth of July afternoon. Describing the experience to friends in Auburn that evening, Sam said, "Those folks didn't do things by halves. Even the butler who opened the door for me was nude."

"If he was nude, how did you know he was the butler?" asked Mr. Adams' literal-minded publisher.

"Well," said Mr. Adams, "it certainly was not the maid!"

Lynn Farnol reports that a crowded elevator was about to ascend the other afternoon when a happy drunk shouldered his way into it. As the car arose, he faced his fellow-riders and announced cheerfully, "I'll bet all of you are wondering why I called this meeting."

A chronic bad check passer suffered his greatest indignity recently. He received a call from his Red Cross blood bank. It seems his blood belonged.

General MacArthur Urged Kennedy To Use Caution In Cuban Affairs

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Gen. Douglas MacArthur, sometimes considered a military fire-eater, was not that way at all when he conferred with President Kennedy regarding Cuba. He advised a cautious wait-and-see course — that which former Vice President Nixon has privately described as inspired by fuzzy-minded liberals.

Purely by accident, Kennedy had received some advance information as to how the retired 81-year-old general of the armies felt about Cuba. After Kennedy's appointment with MacArthur was already set, but before he left for New York, some old friends of MacArthur's had dropped in to see him. They frankly favored military intervention, but not MacArthur.

"The United States is like the bamboo tree," said the military sage of the Waldorf Tower. "When the floods come and the windows blow, the tree bends. But when the water subsides the bamboo straightens out again."

"The almond tree, which stands straight up, is torn up, roots and all, by the storm. But not the bamboo tree."

MacArthur went on to say that Cuba was no mortal danger to the United States, and like the bamboo tree we could bend with the storm and wait until the people of Cuba worked out their own salvation.

General Mills In Alaska

All news is local—especially as far as Senators and their better halves are concerned. This Charles H. Bell, president of General Mills, discovered during his company's recent dinner in honor of its bake-off winners from the 50 states.

He was introduced to the charming wife of Senator Gruening (D., Alaska), who apparently caught only the end of the introduction.

"General Mills," she said sweetly, "have you ever been stationed in Alaska?"

Nixon's Private Criticism

Former Vice President Nixon held a secret breakfast meeting last week at the home of Wiley Buchanan, ex-ambassador of protocol who handled visiting bigwigs during the Eisenhower regime. What Nixon said at this breakfast regarding Kennedy and Cuba was certainly no as complimentary as his public statements of support.

The former Vice President said that Kennedy had bungled by not throwing U. S. armed forces into battle when it was obvious that the rebel invasion would fail.

Had the Republicans and Eisenhower been running the show, Nixon said, they would have been all ready with U. S. troops to follow up the freedom fighters and wipe out Castro in toto.

Nixon said that Kennedy seemed to be under the influence of "fuzzy-minded liberals," who now advise him to wait and let Castro destroy himself by his own ineptitude. Nixon cited the New York Times editorial urging a "wait and see policy" which Kennedy seemed to be following. According to Nixon, this is disastrous.

If Kennedy strikes out and takes a strong position in regard to Cuba, he'll have the wholehearted support of the Republican Party, Nixon said. If not, then that support may not be so wholehearted.

Some of those at the breakfast recalled that it was the Eisenhower administration which originated the plan for the undercover invasion of Cuba and had located the camps in Guatemala and Nicaragua where the freedom fighters were trained. Nixon did not deny all this. But he made it plain that if Ike had been in the White House running the show, things would have been entirely different.

Note—It was originally proposed by the Eisenhower administration to launch the undercover invasion of Cuba last November. But because it was an election year, and because Eisenhower didn't want to start something he might not be able to finish, he decided to postpone the showdown and let Kennedy handle it. There was no disagreement between the President-elect and the retiring President on this point.

De Gaulle Warm Up

President Charles de Gaulle's opinion of President John F. Kennedy has shot up considerably as the result of Kennedy's transatlantic calls offering American military aid to smash the French army revolt.

De Gaulle, who considers himself a man of destiny, had certainly not previously considered the young new President of the United States a man of destiny. He had resented Senator Kennedy's speech some years ago proposing independence for Algeria. And even though de Gaulle got around to Kennedy's ideas some time later, he had remained aloof when Kennedy recently proposed a meeting between the two.

Three overtures were made by President Kennedy to President de Gaulle—through the French Ambassador in Washington, Herve Alphand, through roving Ambassador Averell Harriman, and through U. S. Ambassador James Gavin in Paris, before the meeting of May 31 was finally arranged.

But when Kennedy telephoned de Gaulle to offer the U. S. Sixth Fleet to help crush the revolt of the Algerian generals, de Gaulle reversed himself completely.

He has now told friends he will never forget how, in France's darkest hour, the young new President of the United States stood up and was counted as a real friend of France.

What impressed de Gaulle was that Kennedy took this stand even after the French generals had sent secret messages to the White House pledging to give the USA complete cooperation which de Gaulle had withheld—if Kennedy helped them defeat de Gaulle. The generals knew that de Gaulle had refused to go along with Kennedy's stand in Laos, and had refused to cooperate in banning atom bomb tests, and had been upstage about seeing Kennedy.

However, Kennedy not only scornfully rejected the generals' deal but ordered Ambassador Gavin in Paris to inform de Gaulle what had happened.

The Poor Authors

By John Crosby

America, the world over, is known as a land of cultural barbarians, a spiritual wasteland, a totally materialist society. One reason for this is the way it treats its writers. No country treats writers or artists as badly, though England treats hers fairly badly too. As a result of discriminatory and confiscatory tax laws, our writers either live abroad where the tax people leave them wholly alone and where they get very rich, or they live in America where they are robbed of every last penny by the tax department.

It's a ridiculous system. I have at hand a letter from Taylor Caldwell, a tremendously successful novelist who lives in Buffalo rather than in Switzerland where the living is easy: "I haven't been able to save a cent since 1947 and my books since that time have all been best-sellers and several book club selections and movie selections. I have no pension funds, no dependents. And I'm sixty. A hell of a situation. The government regards writers with suspicion. Why does a writer have expenses, huh? All he does, huh, is sit at a typewriter and the stuff rolls out? Travel for local color, huh? Why? Can't he go to the public library? Expenses for mail, secretary, CPA? Disallowed!"

While not among the enthusiasts for Miss Caldwell's novels, I was aware they were enormously successful and I was shocked at how little Miss Caldwell got out of her labors. She writes: "A best-seller is frequently a disaster to an American novelist, unless he lives abroad while writing it. I had a tremendous best-seller in 1946 ('This Side of Innocence'). My husband and I had worked on the book from 1927-33, and then from 1944-45. It was serialized, and was a book club selection several times then, and then was sold to Hollywood."

"All in all we worked over eight years on the thing. We received the bulk of the royalties in 1947. After we had paid federal and state taxes on the book, and local taxes, we discovered that we had averaged $400 apiece a year over all those years of constant work! And so in 1947 our income was so huge, and therefore in the highest brackets, that we had to mortgage our small house to have money enough to live on the rest of the year. Even Section 107 B was of no particular help to us, except that without it we'd not even had had that $400 apiece for each of those eight years."

"A prominent estate counselor wanted to arrange our 'estate.' He knew of our best-sellers, movie sales, book clubs. We told him we had no estate. It had been taken from us by the Feds and the state. He looked at us with contempt and said: 'You must be a pair of fools.'"

As a matter of fact, writers generally have been fools in regard to taxes. Only a few years ago, the man most discriminated against, taxwise, was the inventor. But the inventors hired a tax-lawyer. The law regarding inventors was changed so that the inventor moved from the bottom of the heap, taxwise, to the very top. Today, says tax attorney Gustave Simon: "If you want to be in the best tax position, either become an inventor — or move to Russia. From an economic point of view, the best place on earth is Russia, if you're a salaried man, a creative artist, or a professional man."

The writers — some of them — have shown great ingenuity in wriggling through loopholes in the present tax laws but have shown almost no imagination toward getting them changed to some more equitable arrangement. "Authors," says Simon, "are the poorest represented people in America, taxwise. Plumbers are better represented."

But, shortsighted as this is from the point of view of the author, it is even more short-sighted from the point of the country. I'd like to pursue that thought in my next column.

Jackie Jensen Announces He's Quitting Game

Reflexes Are Gone And He's Had It

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Boston Red Sox outfielder Jackie Jensen said Monday night he was through playing baseball.

"I've had it," he told a newsman. "I know when my reflexes are gone and I'm not going to be any 25th man on the ball club."

This was the first word from Jensen on his sudden walkout.

Jensen got only six hits in 46 at-bats for a .130 batting average in the first 12 games.

He took a midnight train out of Cleveland Saturday, without an official word to anybody, and has stayed away from newsmen. He is en route to Reno, Nev., to join his wife, former Olympic diving champion Zoe Ann Olsen.

She said, when she learned Jackie was heading home: "I'm just speculating, but I have to think Jack feels he's hurting Boston's chances."

The Union Pacific Railroad streamliner, City of San Francisco, stopped in Ogden, Utah, for a few minutes. Sports writer Ensign Ritchie of the Ogden Standard Examiner went to Jensen's compartment.

Mad At The World

The conductor said to Ritchie: "I don't think you want to talk to him. You'll probably get a ball bat on the head. He's mad at the world."

But Jackie had gone into the station. Ritchie walked up to him at the magazine stand. "I told him who I was and he was quite cold. But he warmed up after a while. I told him what Liston had said and he said Liston was a dirty double-crosser and said anything he (Liston) got was through a keyhole. He said he had never talked to Liston."

Liston is Bill Liston, baseball writer for the Boston Traveler, who quoted Jensen as saying: "I can't hit any more. I can't run. I can't throw. Suddenly my reflexes are gone. I am quitting only because I have too much pride to be the 25th man on the Red Sox."

Says He's Through

Ritchie did not question Jensen about any specific things Liston wrote. He said Jensen "got roused up a bit" the minute he mentioned Liston's name. But said Ritchie: "I asked him, 'are you through?' And he said, 'definitely. I've had it. I know when my reflexes are gone and I'm not going to be any 25th man on the ball club.'"

In Kansas City, Red Sox Manager Mike Higgins awaited a call from Jensen. He said he hoped Jensen would play some more but added: "I don't think Jackie will ever play again."

The Minnesota Twins' ball park is neither in Minneapolis nor in St. Paul. It's at Bloomington, a suburb.

O'Toole Hurls Reds To Win

Cincinnati Beats Philadelphia, 3-2

CINCINNATI (AP) — With the support of 11 hits, young Jim O'Toole pitched a slick six-hitter Monday night that gave Cincinnati a 3-2 victory over Philadelphia and bailed the Reds out of the National League cellar.

A thin crowd of 2,089 on a cool evening saw O'Toole fan nine Phils and walk only two. He protected the one-run margin from the fourth inning.

The Redleg southpaw wavered in the sixth, walking John Callison and Tony Taylor. But a double play pulled him out of trouble and he finished strong, allowing only one hit—Bob Maikmus' single in the eighth—the rest of the way. O'Toole helped himself out of danger that time, too, combining with Don Blasingame on an other double play.

Philadelphia . . . 010 100 000—2 6 1 Cincinnati . . . 011 100 000—3 11 0

Home run — Cincinnati, Coleman (3).

Champ Gets Offer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson Monday was offered $350,000 to meet the winner of the Zora Foley-Alejandro Lavarante fight, but Foley conceded Sonny Liston rates a title shot more than any other contender.

Foley, who meets the Argentine boxer Lavarante here on May 11, said at a luncheon Monday, "I think Sonny Liston rates a title shot more than any of the rest of the challengers. But I think I rate it more than (Eddie) Machen or (Henry) Cooper, if I win this one."

Games Postponed

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) — Wet grounds forced cancellation Monday of a doubleheader between West Virginia University and Richmond baseball teams.

WVU is scheduled to meet Fairmont here Tuesday but rain threatens to wash out that meeting too.

Indians To Drill

The Indians of the Dapper Dan Little League will hold a practice drill Wednesday at 6 p. m. at Constitution Park. Manager Oscar Leasure requests that all holdovers and farm team players be present.

They call George Crowe, the Cards' pinch-hitting star, the "Judge" because he frequently is called upon to settle arguments among the players.

Friday Is Deadline To Enter Rec League

The deadline for teams to apply for entry into the Rec Softball League will be Friday, May 5.

The league will be limited to 12 teams this season. This will help to insure each team of playing at the least two games per week and is also done because of the limited number of fields available in the city. In the event that more than 12 teams apply for admission the teams will be screened by the Recreation Department on the basis of sponsors and players who live within the city limits for entry into the league.

To date 11 teams have applied for admission.

League operation will be similar to that of last year, with the exception that once an athlete plays in another league, the Rocking Chair or County League, he will not be eligible to play in the Rec League. The next meeting will be Thursday, May 11 at 8 p. m. at City Hall.

Twilight Baseball Slate Is Canceled

Three games in the Twilight Baseball League yesterday were postponed because of rain and wet grounds. Zihlman at Westernport and Franklin at Klondyke have not been rescheduled, but the Danville-Barton clash at Rawlings was reset for Wednesday at 5:30 p. m.

Thursday's slate will find Westernport at Barton, Zihlman at Franklin and Klondyke at Danville on the Rawlings diamond.

Mattingly Receives Plaques At SS. Peter & Paul Dinner

Becker, Deffenbaugh, Clayton, McElfish Given MVP Awards

Coach Robert C. "Bob" Mattingly, who was described as "a man of quality, integrity and principle," was honored last night at a testimonial dinner marking his tenth anniversary as basketball mentor of SS. Peter & Paul teams in the Catholic Youth League.

One hundred and fifty persons attended the affair at SS. Peter & Paul Church cafeteria where letters and trophies were presented to the six cheer leaders, 19 members of the football squad and eight members of the basketball team.

Coach Receives Plaques

Mattingly, an alumnus of LaSalle High School, who has coached SS. Peter & Paul basketball teams in the CYO League since the 1951-52 season, was the recipient of two attractive plaques—one from SS. Peter & Paul parish and the other from Cumberland Council No. 586, Knights of Columbus—in recognition of the good work he has done for the boys of the parish. He also received several gifts from St. Patrick's Church.

The Rev. John C. Lipinski, O.F.M., Cap., director of athletic activities at SS. Peter & Paul parish, acted as toastmaster and expressed his appreciation for excellent job performed by Mattingly during his ten years of service and expressed his gratitude to Mrs. Scott and her crew for the preparation and serving of the meal.

Jack Gilmore, assistant football coach, and Norman F. Geatz, Jr., head grid mentor, were introduced, and the latter presented letters and trophies to members of the squad.

Three Share MVP Award

Geatz admitted that it was quite a task to single out any one grinder for the Most Valuable Player Award so it was decided to select three players, namely, Bill Deffenbaugh, outstanding lineman, and Dale Clayton and Greg McElfish, outstanding backs.

Before he introduced members of his basketball squad, Coach Mattingly stated that as long as Father John stays at SS. Peter & Paul he wouldn't trade places for any other coaching job.

Mattingly presented trophies and letters to his basketballers and also recognized six players who didn't earn awards, namely, Mike Stegmaier, Steve Parsons, Bobby Aldridge, Pat McLean, Mike Mullaney and Kevin Mattingly.

Becker Is Honored

In conclusion, Coach Mattingly announced that Larry Becker was the winner of the MVP for basketball.

Jack Rorick, grand Knight of the K. of C., presented the Knights of Columbus Trophy, a shield-shaped plaque, to Mattingly while Father John presented ### the SS. Peter & Paul plaque which he described as a "basketball" contained the coach's 10-year record.

The Rev. Marius Elsener, O.F.M., Cap., pastor of SS. Peter & Paul Church, thanked Mattingly sincerely for his valuable services to the parish and athletic program and also praised Bob's wife while Father John presented

In Memoriam

In memory of Mrs. Margaret E. McKenzie who passed away May 2, 1961 and Mrs. Ida S. Winner who passed away May 6, 1961.

They always leaned to watch for us. And so I think that where she is she must be watching yet. Waiting till we come home to her. And so I think that where she is she must be watching yet. Waiting till we come home to her. And so I think that where she is she must be watching yet. Waiting till we come home to her.

Because they waited there. Her thoughts were all so full of us. She never could forget. And so I think that where she is she must be watching yet. Waiting till we come home to her. And so I think that where she is she must be watching yet. Waiting till we come home to her.

Who had such a gentle heart. The long way home would seem more like a dream.

In Memory of Thomas Guy Reed who passed away three years ago, May 1, 1958.

Many a day his name is spoken. And many hours he is in our thoughts. He has gone away from our home. But not our hearts. He has left behind him a loving wife, a devoted daughter, a kind son, and a loving family. He has left behind him a loving family. He has left behind him a loving family. He has left behind him a loving family.

Sadly missed by his wife, sister, children and grandchildren.

ABL Planning Family Day Open House

15th Anniversary Event May 20-21

Officials of the U. S. Navy's Bureau of Naval Weapons and Hercules Powder Company announced plans for a "Family Day Open House" at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory on May 20 and 21 to observe the 15th anniversary of Navy-Hercules operation of the research and development facility.

Appointed co-chairmen by the steering committee of LCDR. E. P. Loflin, branch representative of the Bureau of Naval Weapons, and Duard H. Little, plant manager, were Dr. Rudolph Steinberger, L. B. Riley and D. C. Grayson Jr.

For the first time in its history, Allegany Ballistics Laboratory will open its doors to employees' families and guests.

Approximately 10,000 people are expected to visit the facility during the two-day celebration.

Each employee will receive four tickets which will admit himself and three members of his family or friends to the ABL event.

A highlight of the celebration will be a conducted tour of the reservation and its facilities with brief stops at the machine shop, analytical laboratory, computing section, x-ray, pilot plant and structures laboratory.

After the tour the guests will visit the missile and rocket display at the athletic field.

The following committees were appointed by the steering committee:

A. M. Jacobs and W. H. Fuller, tour; L. T. Greco, J. L. Powell and C. C. Jackson, publicity; J. T. Morris, W. Bernard and S. H. Harris, exhibits; B. R. Warren and G. W. Walters, transportation.

G. D. Weston and C. W. Smith, security; D. H. Little and E. P. Loflin, reception; B. R. Lewis and E. N. Griffin, safety; J. L. Huffman, J. W. Woodard, E. F. Lacy and E. R. Sokolowski, facilities.

R. Hunter, T. S. Brown and G. E. Zimmerman, procurement; A. Gentry, legal; W. E. Gibbs, finance; W. C. Lewis and R. D. Hartsock, art; W. Wood, first aid; B. C. Menges and D. K. Stickley, tour dialogue.

The demand for farm housing loans has increased substantially over a year ago, according to B. Beeson Snyder, Allegany-Garrett counties supervisor for the Farmers Home Administration, who said more than twice as many applications were received during March this year as during the same month last year.

The rate of obligations has almost doubled during the past 30 days, Mr. Snyder pointed out that the FHA has broad authority to finance the construction of farm homes and service buildings and the remodeling, modernization and enlargement of existing farm structures.

He pointed out that the FHA is making loans on the full range of farms authorized under Title V of the Housing Act of 1949.

Mr. Snyder maintains an office at the Court House in Oakland and visits the local Court House periodically and confers with Joseph M. Steger, county farm agent.

198 Persons Give Blood To Red Cross

Bloodmobile Unit At Lonaconing Today

The Red Cross blood procurement program was highly successful yesterday afternoon as local and area donors gave 198 pints of blood when the Bloodmobile unit from Johnstown, Pa., visited the Eagles Home on North Mechanic Street.

Mrs. John Lohnas, blood-recruitment chairman in Cumberland, said that 126 persons "walked-in" yesterday and gave blood. She said 28 persons gave blood for the first time.

Some 218 persons were scheduled to give blood and of that number 93 kept their appointments. There were 21 rejects. The quota was 150 pints.

Mrs. John W. Hite of Oldtown Road joined the four-gallon club yesterday.

Those who joined the three-gallon club are Richard M. Johnson, 729 LaVale Terrace; Mrs. Pearl Domes, Avenue M. in LaVale; and Patrick Tierney, 11 North Allegany Street.

Four persons joined the two-gallon club. They are J. P. Miller of Wiley Ford; James J. Kerns, 307 Dorn Avenue; Robert L. Gilpin, 215 Pennsylvania Avenue; and Phyllis J. Steger, Brice Hollow Road.

George Geatz, 208 Pace Street; Richard L. Clay, 415 North Centre Street; Warren D. Johnson, 36 Memorial Avenue; and Mrs. Mildred Spencer, 12 National Highway joined the one-gallon club.

Physicians on duty were Dr. Donald Grove and Dr. Richard Williams.

Today the bloodmobile unit will visit the VFW Home in Lonaconing from noon until 6 p. m.

Farm Housing Loan Demand On Increase

Open house is planned at Springfield State Hospital Wednesday to celebrate National Mental Health and Hospital Week. It will be held from 1 until 4 p. m. in the Geriatric Building.

Tours will be conducted throughout the hospital beginning at 2:30 p. m. and refreshments will be served at 4 p. m. The public is invited to attend.

This year the discussion will be "the out-patient treatment of the mentally ill" with Dr. Martin Gross, director of medical research, and Dr. Walter Reeves, chief of the out-patient department, as speakers.

Further information regarding the open house may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Ella D. Everstine, psychiatric social work consultant, at the county health department.

State Hospital Plans Open House

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners voted unanimously Friday to publish the list of property owners who are delinquent in their 1959 and 1960 county real estate and personal property taxes.

County Tax Collector William B. Orndorff submitted to the county commissioners a copy of the list of delinquent taxpayers. Mr. Orndorff reported that each of these property owners was sent a duplicate bill with a notice that the property would be subject to sale if the taxes are not paid within 60 days.

It cost the county $124.60 in postage alone to send out the duplicate bills.

Guard Units 'Vill Plan Entertainment

The local National Guard will present "The Tommy Scott Show" at the Brown Avenue armory Tuesday, May 16.

The performance will be sponsored jointly by Headquarters Company, commanded by Capt. Jonathon Eckhart, and Company C, commanded by Lt. Norman Messman. Both companies are units of the First Medium Tank Battalion.

Featured will be a hillbilly jamboree and circus revue, starring Tommy Scott, country and western music recording artist. Other performers are Rudy Preston, four-year-old Scotty Lee, and Gaines Blevins, "the old man of the mountains," and the Masked Rider, movie and television star.

On Light Cruiser

Robert E. Grant, seaman apprentice, son of Marshall E. Grant, Cresaptown, is serving aboard the guided missile light cruiser USS Providence which has returned to Long Beach, Calif., following a six-month cruise with the Seventh Fleet in the Western Pacific.

This once comfortable chair landed in the city dump yesterday as the Cumberland Street Department hauled 56 loads of rubbish on the first day of the annual "Cleanup Week" drive. Clifton Shaffer left, and H. W. Rodenhauer, foreman, are seen lifting the discarded chair into a city truck with the assistance of George Minnick, standing on the bed of the truck. Waiting to add a basket of rubbish is Harvey Shadwell, at left. Today's drive will be in the area north of Williams Street, including the section from Piedmont Avenue to the city line at Bedford and Frederick streets. West Side will be covered tomorrow.

Dr. LeBlanc, a native of Boston, Mass., attended Tufts University where he earned his B.S. degree in chemical engineering, and later attended Massachusetts Institute of Technology where he earned his Ph.D. degree. He began with Hercules in 1950 at the Research Center, Wilmington, Del., transferring to ABL in 1956.

4-H Speech Contest Conducted

Boonsboro, Fort Hill Students Triumph

Judy Rohrer of Boonsboro in Washington County, and David Norris, who attends Fort Hill High School, were named winners of the District 4-H Public Speaking Contest held here last night.

James B. Arnold, assistant farm agent of Allegany County, who is in charge of 4-H work, said the two students will compete for state honors during 4-H Club Week activities at the University of Maryland in August.

During the contest held last night at Moon's Dining Room, three others sought first place honors.

They were Pattie Sue DeVelbiss and Robert Layman, who represent Garrett County, and Sallie Miller, Valley High, another Allegany County contestant.

The youngsters talked for five minutes on 4-H Club work. Each county had an elimination contest and the winners competed last night.

Youths Guilty In Shooting At Lonaconing

One Tries Escape From Courtroom

Two Lonaconing area youths yesterday were found guilty of being delinquent minors in the shooting incident Friday night in Lonaconing in which Virgil Alexander was shot in the back.

One of the youths, a 17-year-old, was ordered committed to the Maryland Training School for Boys, while the other boy, a 14-year-old, was placed on strict probation for two years.

Following the hearing yesterday afternoon in Juvenile Court before Magistrate Louis A. Fatkin, the older boy attempted to escape from the court but he was nabbed near the door by Tfc. Robert C. Dishong of the State Police.

He then was taken to the County Jail to await transportation to the Training School.

The shooting occurred early Friday night as Mr. Alexander, former mayor of Lonaconing, was walking down a street. He was struck in the back with a bullet fired from a .22 calibre rifle.

During the hearing yesterday, testimony revealed the older youth recently had stolen $140 from his grandmother and had purchased the rifle and a pistol and a quantity of ammunition. The youths said they were just target practicing when the bullet struck Mr. Alexander.

Mr. Alexander was taken to Miners Hospital in Frostburg, but was released Saturday.

State's Attorney James S. Getty prosecuted the case and witnesses included Tfc. Dishong and Officer George Duckworth of the Lonaconing Police Department.

Cleanup Drive Here Is Off To Good Start

56 Loads Hauled From South End

Record collections are anticipated today as Street Department crews move into the area north of Williams Street on the second day of the annual "Cleanup Week" campaign.

Today's collections will also include the area from Piedmont Avenue to the city line at Bedford and Frederick streets.

The annual drive will end tomorrow as crews move to the West Side.

The campaign got off to an excellent start yesterday as 56 loads of rubbish were collected in South Cumberland.

Much of the success of the start of the drive was attributed to schedules under which each truck was responsible for assigned areas, and to the use of radios to prevent trucks from backtracking.

"We had a system this year," a spokesman said.

People are following directions and having trash at the curbs in time (7 a. m.), tying shrubbery, bushes and paper in bundles and other loose materials in cartons or cans, he said.

This makes it easier and faster for street crews to collect, he added.

In all 32 men and four foremen plus 10 trucks participated in the first day's drive.

The Times and Allegany number was changed from PA 2-4600 to 722-4600, but first two numbers are equivalent to the present PA letters.

Boy Shot In Head, "Critical"

Oldtown Youth Wounds Himself

A 10-year-old boy who lives in the Oldtown area was reported unconscious and in "critical" condition late last night in Memorial Hospital where he was admitted with a gunshot wound in his head.

Richard Lee Fletcher, a fourth grade pupil at Oldtown School, apparently accidentally shot himself, according to State Police who are continuing an investigation.

A bullet from the boy's .22 calibre gun was lodged in his head last night. It entered through his right nostril, authorities said.

The boy is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Fletcher who reside on Oliver Belt Road between Oldtown and Flintstone.

For the past couple of years, police said, the boy had been going out after school with his gun in search of squirrels.

Yesterday he came home from school and left with his gun. About 6:45 p. m. he hadn't returned home and his parents became alarmed.

Mr. Fletcher found his son about 200 feet from the house and the lad was taken to the local hospital by his father in a truck belonging to Harrison Fletcher, his uncle.

Sergeant William F. Baker, criminal investigator for the State Police at LaVale is conducting the investigation and is being assisted by Trooper J. A. Smith.

William P. Sitter, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Sitter, 400 Piedmont Avenue, president of the student government at Western Maryland College, was one of the leaders in planning and organizing yesterday's picketing of the Russian embassy in Washington by some 300 students, mainly from the Westminster campus.

Other leaders included Don Rembert of Arlington, Va., past president of the college student government; William Moore of Ridley, Pa., president of the interfraternity council, and Larry Beyers.

Mr. Moore, a Western Maryland senior, tried to deliver a message to the Russian Embassy yesterday. The message dealt with freedom and peaceful demonstrations. He rang the doorbell twice but no one answered and he left.

The picketing students marched for about 40 minutes a block away from the embassy building, the distance required under District of Columbia statutes.

Final Plans Made For Canal Hike

Final plans for the seventh reunion of the Justice Douglas-Washington Post canal hikers have been announced by Dr. John H. Cover, president of the C&O Canal Association.

Many of the original band of about 30 who made the 185-mile hike along the towpath from Cumberland to Washington in March 1954 are expected to attend the camp-out Friday at Seneca and the 16-mile reunion hike Saturday.

Saturday's trek will be along that portion of the canal that would be inundated if a high dam were to be built at River Bend.

Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas will again be lead-off man as the hikers leave the Seneca Aqueduct at 8 a. m. Saturday for the 16.3-mile down stream trip to the Sycamore Island footbridge just upstream from Little Falls near Glen Echo.

Joining Justice Douglas Saturday will be Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall and Mrs. Udall, Mrs. Pierre Salinger and Congressmen Wayne Aspinall of Colorado and Henry Reuss of Wisconsin.

Two members of the Virginia Legislature who live nearby, Mrs. Kathryn Stone of Alexandria, and Mrs. Hugh McDiarmid, Vienna, also will join the group.

During the seven-hour hike, the group will examine carefully the proposed site of the high River Bend dam being advocated which would inundate 42 miles adjacent to the Potomac River from the dam site to near Harper's Ferry.
